Most major business operations rely more and more on networked controlled automated systems. In addition both outbound and inbound communications can be highly confidential and sometimes sensitive. All this and more is highly accessible to computer network hackers. Some are opportunist, however a great deal of hacking is sanctioned by those requiring information for personal gain.

Once inside the host computer, a hacker can easily evade detection and cause havoc onboard or bring the vessel to a complete standstill. Passwords & Confidential Files can be copied and forwarded out.

Blake Technical SARL introduces Exsatus for Computer Network Security Assessments.
